Free Apps for Windows - Software | PC Free Apps | iPhoneQ: How do I generate a file in the "build" output directory in Jenkins? I'm working on setting up automated tests in a Jenkins build. I need to generate a file for the tests, but my test script needs to open the same file that Jenkins is currently using for the build. This is a problem because Jenkins is generating that file in the build output directory. The plugin doesn't have an option to specify a different directory for the build output. I do have a custom Groovy Ant task that runs and generates the file in the test script, but I also need to have it generated in the output directory of the build. Is there any way to change that f678e9f9e
